

Global Earth-System Sensitive Regions

Broad hotspots where cryosphere, coastal, dryland, reef, forest, and monsoon systems respond strongly to environmental perturbations

Shaded footprints are schematic, not jurisdictional boundaries; they mark broad regions with high sensitivity to warming, sea-level rise, hydrologic shifts, land degradation, or ecosystem tipping risk.